- 13% Outreach/Diocesan Contribution

We anticipate our expenses will increase by 5% in 2021 due to our commitment to continue our current staffing levels as well as cost-of-living and benefit increases.

In comes Outlook for 2021

Our total income for 2021 needs to increase by 17% to continue all that St. Paul’s provides now and cover our projected deficit. Half of our current 2020 operating income comes from faithful pledgers. The rest comes from gifts, special offerings, rental income and past parishioners who support St. Paul’s in perpetuity through endowment gifts.

How much should I give?

Giving and generosity are essential practices of our Christian life. Giving generously turns our hearts towards God and is an expression of God’s mercy and love towards those in need. In Christian and Jewish tradition, the tithe of 10% of income is an act of devotion that makes real our love of God and neighbor.

Many people have the tithe as a goal. Some apportion their tithe, giving 5% to their faith community and another 5% to those in need. How much you give is a matter for prayer as you consider the abundance given you by God.

Stewardship at St. Paul’s 2021

Everything at St. Paul’s has changed and yet so much has stayed the same.

Life at St. Paul’s is still defined by the same core values. We still gather to praise God and lift up those who need our prayers and support. We still provide for the less fortunate in our community. We still offer a place of solace and comfort for those who need a home for their faith journey.

Our path has taken many unexpected turns but we have persevered, walking by faith.

St. Paul’s journey continues, and we can all do our part to ensure that it will continue. Thomas Skillings, Rector

2020 BEGAN like many others, with the good cheer of Christmas helping us welcome a new year full of possibility. In ways that we had all come to love and treasure, St. Paul’s was a bustling hub for all kinds of activities: Sunday services, rummage sorting, choir rehearsals, coffee hours, and countless other activities and gatherings. We had just welcomed new and familiar faces to the staff and clergy, and were seizing new opportunities to go deeper as a community and turn outward.

IN EARLY MARCH, life suddenly changed, bringing an abrupt and unexpected halt to our routines including so much of “normal” life at St. Paul’s. As an act of love and compassion for ourselves and our greater community, we entered into a period of social distance to ensure that those most vulnerable would stay safe. Given the abruptness of the change, we could have gotten discouraged but, instead, we embraced this new reality. We adopted new means of staying connected, navigating the new reality of Zoom accounts and learning to record videos in our homes. And, in remaining true to the prayer we offer each Sunday, we found new ways to use our gifts to make a difference for others. These changes were thrust upon us and they were not always easy, but there was no question that we would try to keep moving on our path of faith. In the process, we more deeply understood that St. Paul’s is more than a building; it is a community that can remain connected even as we are physically apart.

THIS FALL WE HAVE BEGUN to return to St. Paul’s as a physical place even as much of our life as a parish continues in virtual space. Parents and children are making connections to support one another and young people will soon begin their preparations for confirmation. Choristers are continuing—and some just beginning—their musical studies and the Choir’s voices are once again being raised inside the sanctuary. Our pets will come back to receive a blessing for all the comfort they have given us through this time of shelter-in-place. The Advent season will take on new and unexpected meaning and the Christmas season will bring us all a welcome burst of light and hope.

THE TIME WILL COME when we can return to the “normal” life we know and love at St. Paul’s even though we are not yet sure when or what that will be. We will emerge stronger and even more connected, retaining some of the new practices we’ve learned. In the meantime, we must continue to walk along the path of faith, trusting God and encouraging each other to keep moving forward even though we can’t yet see the end. By pledging our financial support to St. Paul’s for 2021, we can make sure it will be there for us when we can all safely return and for future generations to come.
